

- Which is the right NDT method?
- Can I use a different NDT method to that specified?
- Where do I find a acceptance /rejection criteria?
- What is a product Standard?
- Why use a NATA Accredited Test Laboratory?

Products need to be made right the first time, only by using the most appropriate NDT method and the correct acceptance/rejection criteria can this occur.

This one day seminar is aimed at improving your understanding of the main non-destructive testing (NDT) techniques and product Standards to ensure the inspection is the right one and the results mean something. It does this by covering;

- NDT and Quality in manufacturing and maintenance
- Liquid Penetrant Testing (PT)
- Magnetic Particle Inspection (MT)
- Eddy Current Inspection Methods (ET)
- Ultrasonic Inspection (UT)
- Acoustic Emission from Engineered Structures (AE)
- Industrial Radiography - Principles and Practice (RT)
- NDT Training and Certification in NDT
- Weld Testing
- Testing Castings
- Forging examinations
- NDT in Maintenance
- Reporting NDT Results

WHO SHOULD ATTEND:

Business owners, Quality Managers, Production Engineers, Maintenance Engineers, Technicians, anyone who calls for NDT or accepts NDT reports.

OUTCOMES:

To improve your understanding of the main non-destructive testing (NDT) techniques and to increase the return on your investment in NDT.
